Core French Newsletter
January 7th, 2011

Bonjour les parents!

Students are now busy learning their lines for the play, Chat Angora. Chat Angora is a goofy, absent-minded detective who is in search of a very intelligent criminal named Madame Rat.

In this unit, students continue to expand their knowledge of very important high frequency vocabulary. The play story provides an important context for this vocabulary and is used to help students develop reading and writing skills, in addition to improving their oral fluency. At the end of this unit, your child will make a presentation to another class in the school. He/She is expected to spend a few minutes at home on a daily basis memorizing his or her lines.

I have included in this newsletter: A toolbox for parents of students in French Immersion and Core French. A quick and easy reference guide, it will enable you to learn French along with your child. I highly recommend using this document as a learning tool to improve your child’s level of fluency in the language.

Yours truly,
Madame Hoffman